1. This helps to protect nature

2. It is necessary for your safety

3. Useful advice

4. Some advice to save money

- A. Remember some very important rules if go out in frosty weather or find yourself in a very cold place. You should put on warm clothes but it must not keep you from moving freely. Be sure to choose right shoes and hats. Several layers of clothes will keep you warm, because there will be more air between them. Natural materials are better than synthetic ones. Keep moving all the time — don't stand in one place. And the last, but not least — breathe with your nose.

- B. You come up to your car on a frosty morning and the engine won't start. It is not a rare occasion. In cold weather car batteries produce less electricity, because the chemical reaction slows down at lower temperatures. It is possible to get the engine going. One of the most effective ways is to take the battery out of the car and leave it in your flat for some time. When you put it back, don't forget to check the connection cables. They must be tightened.
- C. Empty batteries may cause harm to the environment. That's why we shouldn't throw them out as usual litter. Such negative effects as soil, water and air pollution may occur because of the chemicals from the batteries. There are a number of special places where you can dispose of batteries safely. You may find special bins in supermarkets. The batteries are specially recycled and the substances which they contain are used in other kinds of production.

A boy who became a judo champion

This is a story of a ten-year-old boy who began to study judo. He had lost his left arm in a bad accident. An old Japanese judo master began to teach him. A few months passed. The lessons were really successful. But there was one thing that worried the boy: he had learnt only one move from his coach.

When the boy asked the teacher why it was so, the sensei replied, "You have to know only one move, don't worry."

The boy kept on training. Some time later his teacher sent him to a tournament. The boy won the first two matches without great effort. The third one was more difficult, but he managed to defeat his opponent that time, too. The boy had used only one and the same move.

The boy moved on to the finals.

Now his opponent was taller, stronger and more experienced. At some moment it seemed that the boy lost his fighting spirit. The referee wanted to stop the fight, because he was sure that the boy would lose. The sensei asked the referee to let the rivals fight.

The match continued and at last the boy's opponent made a serious mistake. The boy took advantage of the situation and used his move immediately. He won the match and the whole tournament and became the champion.

On the way back the boy and his teacher discussed all the moves of all the matches. Then the boy asked the teacher the question he had been afraid to ask: "How was that possible that I won the tournament with the only move?"

"There are two reasons for that," the sensei replied. "First of all, the move that you have mastered is one of the most difficult ones in judo. Secondly, the only defense against that move for your opponent is to grip your left arm."

So the boy's weakness became his strength.

8 Whose idea was that to practise only one judo move?

- 1) The boy's.
- 2) The teacher's.
- 3) It was a usual way of learning.

ОТВЕТ: ☐

9 The boy defeated his final rival using...

- 1) his secret move.
- 2) only his left hand.
- 3) his usual move.

ОТВЕТ: ☐

10 The boy won the fight because...

- 1) he had become stronger thanks to his training.
- 2) his opponent was frightened of the boy's secret judo move.
- 3) his teacher was a clever man who hadn't told the real secret to his student at once.

1. Geographic explorations and explorers

2. A bad accident

3. New facts about explorers

4. Some facts about animals

A. Kathryn Warburton, a tourist from Australia, climbed two safety fences in order to take better photos of a polar bear. The animal stuck its head through the bars of the cage and caught the tourist by the leg. The bear broke the woman's leg and she suffered heavy injuries. The angry animal nearly killed her but the other zoo visitors and zoo-keepers managed to scare the bear off with branches and other things. The same animal attacked another tourist a month and a half later.

- B. Polar bears live in the Arctic around the North Pole. Maybe, you saw some pictures of polar bears and penguins together, but in fact it is not possible. These two species live on the opposite sides of the planet. Polar bears are dangerous to people and sometimes they attack humans. Such accidents are very rare, because polar bears live in isolated regions, and they do not often see people there. People who live in the same regions know how to behave and what to do when they meet this dangerous animal.
- C. The first expedition to reach the geographic South Pole was led by a Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen. He and four others arrived at the pole on 14 December 1911. It was five weeks ahead of a British party led by Robert Falcon Scott as part of the Terra Nova Expedition. Amundsen and his team returned safely to their base. Later they learnt that Scott and his four companions had died on their return journey. Today there is a permanent scientific research station at the South Pole called the Amundsen-Scott South Pole Station.

A cookie thief

This story happened at an airport. A woman was waiting for her flight which had been delayed. She had bought a packet of biscuits and a book to read in one of the local shops. There were four hours left before the take-off of her plane.

Some time later she noticed a man who came up and took a seat next to her. He began reading a newspaper, too. While he was reading, he was grabbing cookies from the bag in between. The woman tried to pay no attention to what he was doing. The man took more and more cookies from the bag and the woman thought, "I would hit him if I weren't so nice and polite." So they both took the cookies one by one until only one piece was left. The woman wondered what the man was going to do. He smiled at her, took the last cookie and broke it in two halves. He offered the woman one half and ate the second one himself. The woman thought that he was really rude and cheeky (наглый). Besides, he didn't even thank her for the cookies he had eaten!

Then the flight was announced. The woman gathered her bags and went to the boarding gate. When she got on board the plane and sat down in her seat, she opened her book again and started reading. When the woman put her hand in the bag, she found the packet of cookies inside it. It was untouched. She almost cried in surprise! That was her packet of cookies — there was no mistake!

She felt awfully awkward. She had eaten half of the man's cookies and he didn't say a single word. She had never been so embarrassed in her life! It was too late to apologise, because the plane was taking off. The woman realised that she was the thief but the man was really generous and polite, as he eagerly shared even the last cookie with her.

8 The woman didn't eat her biscuits because...

- 1) she didn't know where she had put the packet.
- 2) the book was interesting and she didn't notice that she was taking the biscuits from the man's bag.
- 3) she wanted to try the man's biscuits.

- 1) as many cookies as the woman.
- 2) more cookies than the woman.

10 The woman understood her mistake when...

- 1) she was in the boarding area.
- 2) she was on board the plane.
- 3) the man had gone away.

2. How to adopt a pet

3. Not all animals are equally good as pets

4. Unusual lifestyle for people

- A. Nocturnal (ночной) animals are active during the night and sleep during the day. Nocturnal creatures generally have sharp senses of hearing, smell, and specially adapted eyesight. Some animals, such as cats, have eyes that can adapt to both darkness and bright daylight. The best known nocturnal creatures are cats, rodents bats and owls. They all have highly developed senses (including the sense of sight).
- B. There are some reasons why you shouldn't own a pet bird. Most birds bite their owners, especially when they feel frightened. Besides, they use their beaks as the "third hand". Such pets are usually very messy. You will have to clean not only the cage but also the floor and the walls around it. Birds live for a long time. You have to be sure that you want to keep them all this time at your place. Birds are very loud and require a lot of attention.

- C. Here are some tips to keep your living space clean. Do not store unnecessary things in your room — take away all the boxes and bags. Don't leave too many things on your desk, bedside table and other surfaces. Always make your bed and don't leave clothes on the furniture. Try not to eat in your bedroom or living room. Throw out litter and the things that you do not need any more. Remember to put the things back into their places.

The milk of human kindness

There lived a poor boy who did not have enough money to buy food. He walked from one house to another and begged for something to eat. One day he came up to a small house and rang the doorbell. A beautiful young woman opened the door. Instead of a meal he asked for a glass of water. The woman understood that he was very hungry and she gave him a big glass of milk. The boy drank it and asked her how much it cost.

She said that he didn't owe her anything. Her mother had taught her to be kind to strangers and never to charge any money for kindness. The boy thanked her and went away.

Many years later that woman fell ill. The doctors from the local hospital could not help her, and she was sent to the city.

Dr Kelly was sent for when she arrived at the hospital. When he came to work, he asked the nurse where the ill woman was from. When he heard the name of the place, a smile brightened his face. He rushed to the ward where the patient was staying. The doctor recognised the woman at once.

From that day on the doctor gave the woman his special care and attention. Finally he managed to cure her of her rare illness. The treatment was very expensive and the doctor asked the secretary to give him the bill. When he looked at the bill, he wrote something on it. Then the paper was sent to the woman. She was sure that she would never be able to pay for the treatment, even if she worked hard the rest of her life.

When she opened the note, she read this in the margin: "Fully paid with a glass of milk." Tears came into her eyes and she remembered that story which happened a long time ago.

You kindness will always come back to you.

1. Some tips for a healthy way of life

2. How a fridge works

3. What you like is not always healthy

4. Technological changes

- A. Before refrigerators were invented people used to keep food in special iceboxes. They were like modern refrigerators but they didn't run on electricity and people just put usual ice inside. Besides, some people had cool cellars (dark and cool places under houses) and even ice houses where food was kept cool most of the year. People also used smoking, salting and drying as effective ways of preserving food.

- B. Eating too much salt is bad for people's health. Salt may cause high blood pressure. It is especially dangerous for elderly people. Many people who suffer from high blood pressure would be healthier if they ate less salt. Salt is tasty, just like sugar, that is why most people like it and don't think about its effects.
- C. Healthy sleep is possible when you follow some simple rules. First of all you should go to bed and get up at the same time every day. Try not to stay in bed too long. More than 8.5 hours of sleep is not recommended. Your gadgets and TV may affect. So when you are already in bed, switch everything off. The right temperature is also very important. And finally, try not to sleep during the day. Sleeping pills are not the best solution either.

Black and white

One day a professor of Philosophy came to his students and asked them to get ready for a surprise test. The students were puzzled.

The professor handed out the papers. The students did not see the text on the cards, because they were facing down as usual. Then the professor asked the students to turn the papers over.

All the students were surprised. There were no questions and no pictures on their papers — just a small black dot. The professor was glad to see the surprised expression on the students' faces. Then he explained the task: they students were supposed to write about what they saw. It was obvious that everyone could see a different thing in the same black dot. Most of the students found the task very difficult and they didn't have the slightest idea what to write.

At the end of the class the teacher collected the papers and began reading the answers of the students aloud. All of them paid their attention only to the black dot in the centre of the page. After the professor had read everything aloud he said:

"I don't want to give you marks for this work, but there is one thing I would like to speak about. It is surprising that none of you have written about the white part of the paper. All of you have focused on that tiny black spot in the middle. The same thing happens in our everyday life. When people face difficulties and problems, they concentrate on them only. The problems may be different: people need money or fall ill, or lose their jobs, or quarrel with their family members and friends. But believe me, those dark spots are very small if we compare them to everything else in our lives. But they spoil our life and mood as we think about them too much. That is why we should take our eyes away from the black dots and see the beauty of the world around. People should think about positive things more than about negative ones and be happy."

The students understood the professor's words and told this story to their friends.

8 The students saw the "task"...

- 1) when the professor handed out the cards.
- 2) when they turned over the cards.
- 3) when the professor drew the dot on the blackboard.

ОТВЕТ: ☐

- 1) chose some works of the students to read.
- 2) read only the works of the students who didn't write about the black dot.
- 3) read all the students' works.

Fences and bridges

Once there lived two brothers. They were neighbours and each of them had his own farm. They were always ready to share everything and helped each other in any possible way. Once they had a serious conflict — it was for the first time within 40 years. The conflict began with a small misunderstanding and finally it turned into a great quarrel. The brothers did not even want to talk to each other.

One morning John heard a knock on the door. He opened it and saw a carpenter with a toolbox. That man was looking for a job and he asked John if he had anything to offer. The elder brother pointed to the creek near the second farm. He said that his younger brother made it himself using a bulldozer. Previously there was a green meadow between them.

And John said that he had even a better idea. He asked the carpenter to build an 8-foot fence so that he didn't see his brother any more.

The carpenter agreed because he understood the situation. He took some nails and found a number of poles. John showed him where he could get the wood for the fence. The elder brother himself drove to town for food.

The carpenter worked really hard all day long. At sunset, when John returned, the job was done. The farmer's eyes opened wide and his jaw dropped. He did not see any fence — he saw a bridge over the creek. It was a fine bridge with handrails (перила). Then he saw his younger brother coming across with his arms stretched towards John.

The younger brother said, "It's surprising that you have built this bridge John, after all the rude words I have said to you." The brothers made a few steps forward, stopped in the middle of the bridge, and shook hands.

They asked the carpenter to stay for a few more days. They said that they had a lot of work for him to do, but the man replied that he couldn't stay longer. There were many more bridges to build...

A helping hand

A mother wanted her son to be more interested in playing the piano. He was making progress more slowly than she expected. To motivate the boy she bought tickets for a performance of a great pianist Ignace Paderewski. In the evening they arrived at the concert hall and soon found their seats in the first row. They saw a majestic piano on the stage. The mother noticed her old friend in the audience and they started to talk about something. At that moment the boy disappeared.

Precisely at 8 o'clock the lights went down and the spotlights came on. The audience noticed a little boy sitting on the bench before the piano. He began playing one of those few tunes he knew — Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star. His mother blushed in embarrassment (покраснела от смущения). She understood that she had no time to take her son away from the stage. At the same moment the pianist appeared on the stage and came up to the piano.

The audience began to make noise. They did not understand what the boy was doing there. But Paderewski gave them a sign to calm down.

Then he whispered to the boy, "Keep playing, everything is fine." Leaning over, the musician touched the keyboard with his left hand and began filling in the bass part. He started to improvise. So they both were playing the simple tune.

The crowd was amazed at the beauty of the music. There was a complete silence in the audience.

The boy became a professional musician some years later.

In our life it is very important to receive a helping hand, though we often do not notice it. And we ourselves have a lot of chances to give a helping hand to other people. It is impossible to achieve something without learning from others and without their support. That is why we should share everything we know with other people when we have a chance for that.

Easter Island

Jacob Roggeveen, a Dutch explorer, was the first European visitor of Easter Island. He arrived at the island in 1722. He named it Paaseiland (Easter Island) to mark the day of the arrival. In 1770 another expedition from Peru visited the place.

The Spanish explorers spent several days there and found out that about 3,000 people lived on the island. Four years later Sir James Cook, a British navigator, discovered on his arrival that the population had become smaller (about 700 men and 30 women) after a civil war.

In 1786 a French sailor, Jean-Francois de Galaup, found about 2,000 people on the island.

In 1862 many people of the island were taken to Peru as slaves (рабы). Epidemics of smallpox (оспа) broke out at the same time. So there were only 111 people left on the island by 1877.

In 1888 Easter Island became a part of Chile and was used mostly for sheep breeding.

Easter Island is an isolated triangle 14 miles long and 7 miles wide. It was formed by volcanic activity. The island has many hills and caves which extend deep into mountains of volcanic rock. The biggest volcano of the island is Rano Kao. Its highest point Mount Terevaka reaches 600 m above sea level.

The climate of the island is subtropical. The lowest temperatures are in July and August (18 °C) and the highest — in February (28 °C), the summer season in the southern hemisphere. Winters are quite mild. The rainiest month is April, though the island has year-round rainfall.

Hanga Roa is the largest village with a population of 3,300 people. Ships usually cast anchor not far from this place. Easter Island became a World Heritage site in 1995. Now its population is mixed: it is mostly of Polynesian origin and the descendants (потомки) of the Long-Ears and Short-Ears still live on the island. Spanish is the main language here.

The island is famous for its large statues. They were called moai and represented the ancestors. Moai were set up all along the coastline. The islanders believed that the living had a relationship with the dead. They thought that the dead helped the living in everything.

6 The first European explorers of Easter Island came from Spain.

ДЛЯ АУДИРОВАНИЯ

Сейчас вы будете выполнять задания по аудированию. Каждый текст прозвучит два раза. После первого и второго прослушивания у вас будет время для выполнения и проверки заданий. Все паузы включены в аудиозапись. Остановка и повторное воспроизведение аудиозаписи не предусмотрены.

ТЕСТ 1

Задания 1–6

Вы два раза услышите два коротких диалога, обозначенных буквами A, B. Определите, какие из утверждений 1–6 соответствуют содержанию диалогов (1 — True), а какие не соответствуют (2 — False). В поле ответа запишите одну цифру, которая соответствует номеру правильного ответа. У вас есть 60 секунд, чтобы ознакомиться с заданиями.

Now we are ready to start.

Dialogue A

Mary: Hi, Jim! Are you going to the concert of “The Spiky Monkeys” with us tonight?

Jim: Hi, Mary! I am afraid I am not, because my relatives from the USA are coming to us. They are going to stay here for a few days.

Mary: Oh, never mind. Of course, you should spend more time with them!

Jim: Mary, may I ask you to buy me a CD? I’ll give you ... eh ... twenty dollars, I think that’ll be enough.

Mary: I am sure that a CD is even cheaper. Do you mean their latest album “Summer in Brighton?”

Jim: Sure. I usually buy music on the Internet, but this time I want to have a CD, because there must be their autographs on it.

Mary: I have heard about that, too. And if there aren't any autographs?

Jim: Hm... Will you buy some souvenirs for me then? I am a big fan of the band, you know.

Mary: OK. No problem. If I have some doubt I will send you a text message.

Jim: Thank you so much. See you!

Mary: Bye!

Dialogue B

Ruth: Oh, Sam, haven't seen you for ages! How is it going?

Sam: Hi, Ruth! I am fine, thanks. I've heard you are moving. Is that true?

Ruth: Yes, but we are staying here, in the same street. We are just going to change the flat.

Sam: Oh, that's nice. And why have you decided to move at all?

Ruth: It's because of my younger brother. Our parents think that each of us needs a separate room, because we are getting older and we often distract each other from doing homework. Besides, we need more space, because our room is really small.

Sam: That's right. I understand. You can't just invite your friends and talk to them if there is someone else in your room. You know, I don't have brothers or sisters. But I have my own room.

Ruth: Of course, I feel a bit worried, because I have lived in this flat for fourteen years. I think that I will miss it.

Sam: I am sure everything will be fine! You shouldn't really think much about that. I am sure these changes are going to be good.

Ruth: Oh, thank you for your support. Come to see our new flat next week!

Sam: Sure! Keep in touch!

You have 30 seconds to complete the task. (Pause 30 seconds.)

Now you'll hear the texts again. (Repeat.)

This is the end of the task. You now have 30 seconds to check your answers.

(Pause 30 seconds.)

This is the end of the Listening test.

Время, отведенное на выполнение заданий по аудированию, истекло.

Harry: OK. I may spend a few hours in front of the screen mostly at the weekend.

Lily: Are there any cool games you would recommend to me?

Harry: I prefer strategies, which are not so popular nowadays as they used to be a few years ago.

Lily: Oh, no, strategies are not for me. They are too boring.

Harry: No way! People are just too lazy to concentrate on them.

Lily: Maybe, yes... I like quests, when you look for some things and solve riddles.

Harry: Aren't these quests very long and boring, too?

Lily: You know, tastes differ. Let's not argue about that. I am sure, you are right — I have to spend less time on games after all. But I will need your advice, Harry.

Harry: And when are you going to stop playing games?

Lily: Oh, I am not sure yet. Maybe in a month or two, I will think about it.

Dialogue B

Jean: Peter, are you going to the zoo with our class on Sunday?

Peter: I don't think so. Is it necessary?

Jean: No, it's for anyone who wants to. It will be fun!

Peter: I am not sure it is the best idea to keep animals in cages. They are born to be free, and people keep them in captivity. I feel sorry for these poor creatures.

Jean: I can't fully agree with you, Peter. Very often animals in zoos live longer than in the wild. They get better food and care.

Peter: I am against zoos, sorry. It is much more interesting to look at animals in their natural habitat.

Jean: But it is so expensive! To watch elephants you have to go to Africa or to India. To see polar bears you have to go to the North Pole. Are there many people who can afford this?

Peter: Of course, not. But you can watch videos on TV and on the Internet. There are thousands of them. Do you know, why I think so now?

Jean: Why? I am getting really curious...

Peter: We bought three parrots a couple of years ago. We let them out of the cage but they spoilt our wallpaper and curtains and many other things and we had to keep them in the cage all the time. Then I asked Mom to sell them or take them back to the pet shop. I understood that it was not right to keep them longer.

Jean: Oh, now I see the point, Peter. See you on Monday, then!

Now we are ready to start.

Dialogue A

Sid: Hi, Mary! You look a bit tired. Are you all right?

Mary: Hi, Sid! You see, we've had a very busy week at school. Besides, I have to make a poster at the weekend.

Sid: What kind of poster? What subject do you need it for?

Mary: It's for my Biology class next week. I have a task to draw a poster about endangered animals. You know, such animals which are at risk of dying out.

Sid: Oh, I know, sure. And what's the problem? I believe you don't have enough time for that.

Mary: It's not about time. I am afraid I can't draw or paint very well. And I have no one to help me.

Sid: I have a good idea. Why don't we print out some pictures and put them on a big sheet of paper? What we have to do is just to write some text below the photos.

Mary: I didn't think about that. Will you help me with the printing?

Sid: No problem. I have a very good printer. You may send me the necessary photos by e-mail. I'll print them out and you will come round tonight to get them.

Mary: Thank you so much, Sid! You are a true friend!

Dialogue BShop

assistant: Hello, how can I help you?

Ted: Good afternoon. I am looking for new headphones.

S. a.: We have a wide choice of them. What price do you have in mind?

Ted: I think they shouldn't be more expensive than 25 pounds.

S. a.: OK. Do you want headphones or earphones?

Ted: You mean if I want bigger ones that I put on my head or smaller ones that I put into my ears?

S. a.: Exactly.

Ted: Oh, I need bigger headphones. I use them with my laptop when I watch films or play games or listen to the music.

S. a.: Does the colour make any difference? I suppose that black headphones would be the best choice.

Ted: Right. Are there any wireless bluetooth models that work on batteries?

S. a.: Of course there are, but if you want the best sound quality I would recommend you to buy usual headphones. Nice wireless models cost more than 50 pounds.

Ted: Oh, thank you for your advice. I'll take these black BEEPS headphones then.

Dialogue A

Tom: Hi, Linda! What about your Maths test on Friday? Did you pass it?

Linda: Hi, Tom! Actually it was not that difficult. I thought it would be much worse.

Tom: Do you know your mark?

Linda: Not yet. The teacher is going to tell us about the results at the end of the week. And what about you?

Tom: Oh, our class is going to take the same test tomorrow and I am afraid that I won't cope with it. The thing is that I was ill all last week and did not understand the material. Do you remember the tasks?

Linda: Oh, now I see. Usually you don't have problems with Maths and I was surprised why you asked me about the test at all. I think that I have some rough papers I used during the lesson with all the tasks. Never mind, I remember everything perfectly well.

Tom: Thank you, Linda. You are very helpful. Shall I come to you to take the samples?

Linda: I could just send you the photos, but I think it will be better if you come round yourself. I will explain everything to you.

Tom: Oh, thanks. Is 7 p.m. OK?

Linda: Yeah, that would be fine. I'll be waiting for you.

Dialogue B

Mom: John, don't you think it's time to change the wallpaper in your room?

John: Oh, Mom, I don't really think so.

Mom: But look, the cat has spoilt it everywhere. Now your pet is grown-up and I hope it won't be scratching the wallpaper and peeling it off the walls.

John: Maybe we could do it at the end of this school year, Mom?

Mom: There will be a lot of other things to do in summer. Believe me, it won't take long. Of course, you will have to move the furniture and then clean up the mess. But I really feel ashamed when someone comes and sees your room.

John: OK, Mom! Will you choose the wallpaper yourself or should I help you?

Mom: I think you need some lighter shade of green or blue. There is not enough light in your room now. I think Dad and I will buy the wallpaper ourselves. But you can look for something on the Internet and show us what you would like to buy.

John: No problem. When are we going to start?

Mom: I think we will do it next weekend. It won't take long — just half a day or so.

Dialogue A

Tanya: Hi, Philip! I saw a missed call from you on my phone a couple of minutes ago. What did you want to ask me about?

Philip: Hi, Tanya, thanks for calling me back. Our teacher, Mrs Harris, asked us to call the students who were absent and tell them that she was going away for a week. We do not need to come early tomorrow.

Tanya: Oh, thank you, Philip! And why didn't you just send me a message?

Philip: You see, it's 10 p.m. now and I was not sure that you would read my message.

Tanya: Right. I usually don't read messages before going to sleep. I was brushing my teeth and missed your call, you know.

Philip: And when I came back home, I completely forgot to call you because I had so many things to do, sorry.

Tanya: Never mind. Everything is fine. I don't have to get up at 7 tomorrow. And this means I... might watch a film today.

Philip: A film? Are you really going to stay up so late?

Tanya: Oh, it is not a feature film. It is a short documentary about the Bermuda Triangle. Just 45 minutes.

Philip: Oh, that's quite a different thing! Good night, see you tomorrow!

Tanya: Bye! Thank you once again!

Dialogue B

Mag: Hi, Grandpa! Nice to see you again!

Grandpa: Hi, Mag. How are you? It's been a long way today.

Mag: Did you go by train? It is so hot and stuffy today!

Grandpa: Yes, I got on the train at 12 o'clock. Going by bus in such weather would be even worse. I think there's going to be a thunderstorm tonight.

Mag: Come in. How long are you going to stay with us?

Grandpa: For three or four days. It depends.

Mag: What does it depend on? I think you have enough free time to stay here for a week. I would like to go to the cinema and to the park, and to the zoo with you. There is an...

Grandpa: All right, all right. I am not in a hurry. Get me some water to drink first. So what else is there? What did you say?

Mag: There is an interesting exhibition at the Space Museum. I would like to visit it with you. Please...

Grandpa: OK, Mag. Let's have a short rest and then we will discuss what we are going to do. When is your mom coming back? Has your dad returned from his business trip?

Mag: Mom is coming back in an hour and a half. And Dad is going to be here tomorrow.

Public opinion

Once a boy, an old man and a donkey were going to town. The boy was riding the donkey and the old man was walking. People around were looking at them as they were going through the villages on the way. They remarked that it was a shame that the old man was walking and the boy, who was much younger, was riding. The boy and the old man decided that those people might be right: so the man mounted the donkey and the boy went on foot.

Some time later they were passing by another group of people who said, "What a shame! The old man makes such a little boy walk!" And the man and the boy decided to walk together.

Soon other people saw those two walking by the donkey. They were surprised and said that it was really stupid to walk instead of riding the donkey.

Can you guess what happened next?

Now they both were riding the donkey. Again some people noticed them and said that it was an awful thing to put such a heavy weight on a poor donkey.

The boy and the man agreed and they decided to carry the donkey. When they were crossing the bridge, the donkey fell into the river and drowned.

Easter Island

The total area of Easter Island is about 64 square miles. It is located in the South Pacific Ocean, 2.300 miles from the coast of Chile. Its original name was Rapa Nui, and the modern name "Easter Island" was given to it by Dutch explorers when they arrived there in 1722.

The island's economy is based on tourism. Easter Island is well known thanks to its huge stone statues which are very old. No one knows for sure what those huge figures were made for, but they obviously played some role in the life of the ancient civilisation that inhabited the island.

Archaeologists say that there were three cultural periods in the history of Easter Island; the early (700–850 AD), the middle (1050–1680) and the late (post-1680) period. During the middle period some of the statues were rebuilt and became bigger and heavier. The biggest statue from the middle period is about 32 feet tall and its weight is about 82 tons. The late period was the time of civil wars and destruction.

There were two main tribes on the island: the Short-Ears and the Long-Ears. They began a war, and the population of the island was greatly reduced.
